QUICK GUIDE | Rotary Floor Cleaning Machines

- Rotary floor machines come in different forms, for different tasks. Here's a quick guide on which type you need for various applications:
- Slow Speed Machines are typically 120-200rpm and are used for stripping polished floors, wet scrubbing floors and bonnet buffing carpets. The slow speed machine is an important machine in the cleaning teams armoury. You cannot wet scrub or strip floors with a high speed machine, it must be slow speed - a high speed machine will give a 'bow-wave' effect where the solution goes everywhere!
- High Speed Machines are typically 350-500rpm and are used for buffing, polishing and spray cleaning. If you have polished floors to maintain you cannot buff or polish with a slow speed machine.
- Twin Speed Machines are the best of both worlds - at the flick of the switch you can change between slow or high speeds. In effect this is two machines in one, making it very versatile.
- Ultra High Speed Machines are quite different and are generally well in excess of 1500rpm. The pads float on the floor, often with the weight of the machine taken by a set of wheels. These machines are used for buffing/polishing, spray cleaning and diamond polishing. These are easier to handle compared to the High Speed and need little skill. They will produce the highest gloss shine on a polished floor, however they are not that good at removing heavy scuff marks, the High Speed, with the extra weight on the floor, is better here.
- Orbital Machines work in a similar way to an orbital sander which means you can both polish and scrub with the same machine. These machines are generally very easy to handle.

QUICK GUIDE | Melamine Floor Pads

Melamine sponges are made from exactly the same material as magic sponges. These are incredibly effective at removing marks and performing deep cleaning tasks with just plain water. To use the pads wet the pad, attach to the machine and use as normal with plenty of water through the machine (if you are using a scrubber drier, turn the solution control to maximum).

If you have a floor where conventional chemical and floor pads aren't cleaning the ingrained dirt, give these a try - they are great problem solvers. Light coloured safety flooring will come up brilliantly with these pads. Melamine pads can also be used to take polish off polished floors depending on the floor type.

Try the 6" pads on the Power Brush XL shown on page 358, it lifts ingrained dirt out of safety flooring in toilets exceptionally easily!
